DISCLOSES BRITAIN'S GRAVE

Mr Richard Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, stressed the gravity of Britain's economic crisis when he addressed a Press conference tonight after the Treasury announcement about Britain's losses in gold and dollar reserves.

If the drain on Britain's reserves continued unchanged at the rate of the last quarter, it would take Britain only about another three months to be back where she started when the Pound was devalued in September, 1949, Mr Butler said.

THAT Mr Churchill's visit to : ■ Washington has got off to a good start is encouraging, but not surprising. The sincerity with which the British Prime Minister invests all his actions and his statements has never, nor could it ever fail to impress his critics as much as his friends and admirers. Mr Churchill numbers among the most important objectives of his mission the re-strengthening of Anglo-American relations. He, as well as the Americans, realise that the old war-time partnership based on equality has changed by circumstances and default, and it will require all of Mr Churchill's genius to mollify this situation. Undoubtedly the most striking example of the decline of Anglo-American post-war limited relations is the very collaboration in the atomic field. It was under Mr Churchill that an agreement for the complete sharing of atomic secrets was signed between the United States, Britain and Canada, But after the war "atomic relations" deteriorated, and the Socialists Government was unable to prevent it; in this field it lacked confidence. One outcome has been the MacMahon Act which prohibits the United States from sharing any military atomic secrets with any other nation, and when Mr Churchill comes to discuss the subject with President Truman and his advisers he will find this piece of legislation a difficult brick wall to surmount. Nevertheless, Mr Churchill and his Government have done three things since coming to power which have favourably impressed the Americans and which are calculated to help the Prime Minister in his mission. The new Covernment has made a positive attempt to reduce the temperafure between East and West if only in a manner of speech. It has shown realism and resolution in dealing with imposed during the Labour Government's term of office. All three efforts have made their impression on the American mind. The excellent reception which Mr Eden's restrained attitude to Russia created in the United States some weeks ago demonstrated the changed line of popular thought in America. The impression left is that Americans are becoming tired of namecalling and want to see a lessening of world tension. Less certain is American reaction to Britain's economic crisis. It is natural there should be some bewilderment in the United States in consequence of the announcement a few months ago that Britain would require no more Marshall Aid which has since heen followed by the revelation that the nation's gold and dollar resources and her balance of payments are at the lowest ebb in history. Americans will probably expect Mr Churchill to ask for a substantial loan to help the country out of its plight; and this is almost certainly the last thing the Prime Minister will seek. There are other ways in which the United States could give valuable assistance without too severe demands being made on its financial resources or economy. Permission for the free use of sterling to pay for hard currency purchases would he a tangible and valuable concession; so too would be a temporary easing of import fariffs. Britain, for her part, has promised increased production and more austere measures to prevent inflationary spending in the British domestic market. Mr Churchill will have his opportunity of explaining the whole position to the American public when he addresses Congress this week and it is not undue ontimism to unticipate that reactions will be sympathetic and favourable, and that the way will be opened for a new equality of relations between Britain and the United States.

Washington Talks Result

Washington Jan, "

President Truman and the British Prime Minister, Mr Winston Churchill, today instructed a special committee of economic experts to examine the problem of raw materials—including Britain's steel requirements—and report back to them tomorrow.

That was the most significant question discussed by the two heads of State in the first of their four meetings at the White House. The session lasted an hour and five minutes. The two will get together for more talks at 10 p.m. GMT (6 a.m. HK Standard Time today).

Britain has been reported to be seeking large quantities of American steel but persons familiar with today's proceedings said no figure was mentioned. The US, with enormous steel manufacturing resources, was said to be in need of tin Britain produces in quantity in Malaya.

At the third trick he leda low trump from dummy, whereupon Bast fumbled and pulled out the wrong card East meant to play the ten of hearts, but he accidentally played the queen

This was a bit of unexpected luck for South. He had intended to play the acc of trumps, which or dinarily would leave East with the good queen of trumps. East's furnble made it unnecessary for declarer to lose a trump trick So South took the act of tramps and drew the last trump with his jack, chuckling over his good luck. and East's clumsiness There's nothing like a good laugh, is there? It was then time to go after the clubs, so South led to dummy's top clubs and ruffed a club Unfortunately the suit didn't break, and dunumy had only one trump left The clubs could not be brought in and South wound up with two loning pondes in his hand. His good luck had cost him a vulnerable

South made a very serious error. of course, when he drew a third round of trumps. He would have made his contract if he had ignored East's third trump and had stuck to his original plan. The curious feature of the hand was that South would have been forced to play the hand correctly if East had made the normal trump play at the third 1rlok

The normal play is for East to play the ten of hearts and for South to win with the ace. Now declarer takes dominy's top clubs and ruffs a club. ### THE GENIUS WHO WEIGHT PROBLEM

By Harold Palmer

Little Tommy Harmer, of London Fields, is a soccer genius in hiding. If I say he is the cleverest ball player in football today, people are entitled to ask: "Then why stout, but he put on only 101o. is he generally a Tottenham Hotspur reserve?"

The answer is in his physique. Although he is 23, inside-left Harmer has the build of a 13-year-old. He is 5 ft. 51/2 in. and weighs 9 st. 4 lb.

There are many in the game takes rain. It is a pholia of not so tall - but not so many which he ought to be cure to lighter. The big query with Harmer concerns his slender. The way people say, "What a little legs - Are they stong pity h, is so small," does not enough?

He has only recently recover-1 ed from a strained groin. That HIS WAY TO injury results from playing in the mud. Still bigger, toughe: players have such troubles, too.

SKILL V WEIGHT The truth is that the complete mastery of a ball that makes the soccer genius is more often found in the smaller types-for an obvious reason. They must i rely on skill to avoid the unequal physical challenge.

The slighter the build the greater the need for skill. It is b a matter of inverse ratio. Harmer, who was playing in Spurs first team today, is clever l enough to keep out of trouble, but he can't keep out of mudj at this time of year. That is why l this light-weight champion dis-

Mid-Winter Shut-down On Soccer May Come

Says IVAN SHARPE

Spring, summer, autumn, winter. There are four seasons to the year, three for football and one for cricket. Leap Year coming once in four, then brings football one day more,

But even the seasons change. Soccer may yet extend its calendar. No one likes these 2.15 starts and the popularity of the 5 o'clock kick-off may mean in the years ahead that the game, which abroad is played mostly in sunshine, will be called off for a month during the mud-heaps of mid-winter. It isn't football, anyway.

Negro Move To Deal With Violence

Atlanta, Jan. 7. The Southern Regional Council today blamed poor law enforcement for outbreaks of violence in the South and announced plans to launch movements throughout the area to seek better Police protection.

The Council denounced the recent outbreaks of violence as the product of "climate .... of daily insult and intimidation" of Negroes.

The group attacked in particular the recent bombings of synagogues and apartment project in Miami and the assassination of a Florida Negro leader and his wife.

Stop Steel Walk-Out

Washington, Jan. 7. The Wage Stabilisation Board transcripts stop-the-steel-strike mive today by appealing to the undustry and its CIO workers to set aside their "immediate self-interest" in behalf of the mation's safety.

The appeal came from Board Chairman Nathan P. Feinsinger les the full Board began drafting to programme for hearings which will start on Thursday before a special six-man panel, He is confident the strike can Le headed off.

The steelworkers originally had fixed Jan, I for the start of a strike in support of demands for an 18-14-cent-anbour wage increase, but the strike was put off, following an appeal by President Truman, for 45 days from the start of the WSB hearings.

Mr Feinsinger said, "The safety of our country is in jeopardy" and added that the success or failure of the hearings would affect the ability of the nation to protect itself in this

"The Board is placing its Cotton futures opened 10 to confidence in the capacity of the United Steelworkers of America The market opened firm on and the steel industry to meet trade and commission house the needs of our times," he said,

The cases directly at issue involve 650,000 workers in comparties whose wage contracts expired on Jan. 1 but wage rates throughout the industry—and in much of the aluminium industry -are riding on the outcome of the steel dispute. Mr Truman referred the case to - WSB with instructions to recommend a fair and equitable settlement acceptable to both parties.—Associated Press.

HOW TO FIGHT INFLATION MENACE

Monetary Weapon And Reparations Drastic Economy

(By GEORGE SCHWARTZ)

London, Jan. 7. According to the Keynesian doctrine, we should have had public works in the 30s to deal with the depression.

The author of that doctrine would, if he were alive, I am sure agree that we now have to have a depression to deal with the public works, namely the Japanese and Indonerearmaments.

New Security Purge Britain's Defence Departments

London, Jan. 7. Mr Churchill isn't satisfied that all men and women of doubtful loyalty have been eliminated from secret defence work. This is the interpretation given the Treasury announcement tonight of a new spy purge order by the Daily Express science writer, Chapman Pincher.

He writes: "About 60 sclentists have been dismissed for security reasons since the Socialisis began the purge five years ago. It is known that a few have accidentally filtered back into defence research. They are people who were transferred to non-secret departments which have since taken rearmament programme.

"The re-check will affect scientist working on a omic energy, guided missles poison gas and germ warfare, aircraft and submarine rei search."

It is suggested here that the announcement means Churchill's raising with Mr Truman the question of pooling atomic Information.
